Speed generation of communications

Improve process efficiency

It is often difficult and time-consuming to create and maintain effective, enterprise-wide omnichannel communications to customers, employees and business processes in an always-on economy.

OpenText™ Document Presentment for SAP® Solutions helps create more effective business communications, reduces the cost and effort of creating personalized business correspondence and automates process driven output to support complex business systems. Organizations can lower costs and complexity through consolidation and integration of output systems into one platform. Integrating document processes with business processes supported by SAP software allows for high-volume document generation and distribution. The result is realtime, relevant correspondence and communications that occur as part of interactions with customers, suppliers and partners to increase satisfaction and loyalty. Automating document-intensive business processes helps organizations improve operational efficiencies and produce timely, reliable, accurate and consistent information across all channels. It also enables faster execution of campaigns that are more targeted and yield higher response rates.

Save dramatically on annual output costs

With Document Presentment for SAP Solutions, organizations can increase efficiency and save costs by replacing all output generations solutions with a single enterprise-wide platform. Document Presentment for SAP Solutions is capable of delivering any message in any format to any target, including customer-facing documents, such as receipts and statements, internal content, such as HR letters, and logistics and shipping services, such as label printing, barcodes and delivery notes.

Document Presentation CE 20.2 allows customers to deploy its cloud native architecture on any platform including on-premises, private cloud and hyperscaler platforms. This can reduce deployment times and allow customers to upgrade faster.

Simplify complex communication process

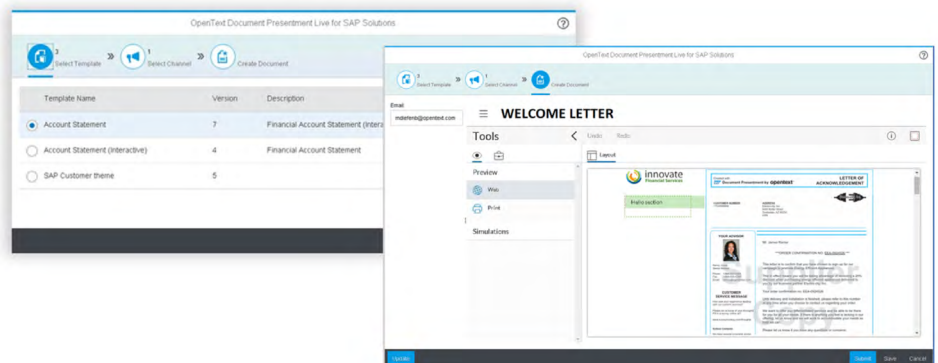

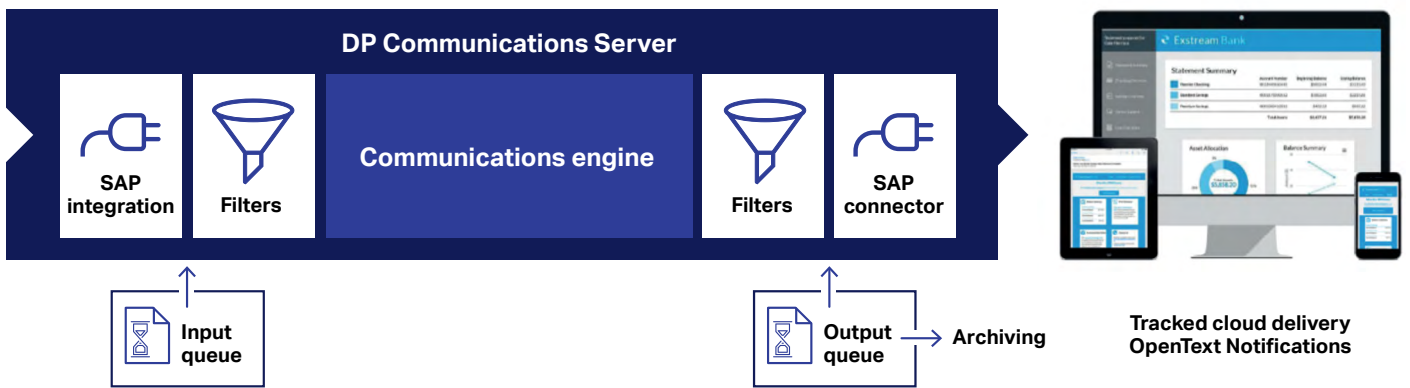

Complex document workflows delay and add risk to critical business processes. Often, these workflows involve complex, multi-step solutions that require significant time and effort to maintain and update and rarely meet the needs of an always-on economy. By reducing this complexity and the downstream errors and delays it causes, Document Presentation for SAP Solutions helps organizations save millions of dollars each year.

Speed generation of communications

Moving from rigid, multi-step processes that use several point solutions drastically reduces the time and effort required to create business communications. Document Presentation for SAP Solutions facilitates engagement with customers, partners, employees and even other business processes, on time, via the correct channel while always delivering the right message.

Data driven, contextual, communications

Omnichannel communications

Easy creation of an ad-hoc letter with OpenText Document Presentation for SAP Solutions within SAP systems.

“The business can easily make ad-hoc changes to correspondence. What used to take four to five days can now be done in less than a day.”
