OpenText™ Blazon™ provides best-in-class document transformation with automatic batch file conversion from original formats into PDF or TIFF. These neutral formats make documents accessible for all workers and ensure support for the files for years to come. Blazon integrates with workflows and other business processes for complete, secure document lifecycle management.

Integrate to any workflow

Blazon allows organizations to automate time-consuming manual processes while reducing costs by integrating document transformation directly into key workflows via a comprehensive API. Users can share collaboration notes and annotations with outside parties by burning in markups and Changemark comments created in OpenText™ Brava!™ to the newly created rendition.

Support compliance

Improve content accessibility and ease compliance with regulations with the ability to add stamps, watermarks, and banners to documents. Security features like password protection, expiration dates, and printing/republishing restrictions help prevent leaks, snooping, and other breaches.

Scale to handle any workload

Blazon is highly scalable and can be deployed at any level, from the department to the data center. Its flexible architecture allows it to scale up and handle large loads.

Deploy easily

Blazon can be used immediately with zero programming resources. With a reputation for being incredibly easy to implement, Blazon can be put to work instantly monitoring a folder or library for new documents to process. As a new file is added, Blazon can convert the file and apply the predefined publishing criteria (a watermark, banners, etc.), saving both the original and published copies into the appropriate library or folder.

This list represents the current known and tested formats supported by Blazon Enterprise. Blazon uses 64-bit technology and typically supports any format with access to a Windows-based application that supports the print canonical verb.
